Visit of the medieval cellars of the Castello di Spessa (Spessa Castle) with tasting.

The cellars of the Castello di Spessa, the most ancient of the Collio, are dug right under the castle and are structured on two levels: the first, which is the most antique, dates back to the medieval period. Once used for wine making, it is nowadays used as a cellar for barrels with natural stones and besides being a location for tastings and happy hours, can be visited on booking. The second level is located 18 mt under by climbing down 70 stairs, and by the end of the '80s it had been connected to a military bunker which was realized in 1939 by the Italian Army and used both by the German and the American Army as outpost till the end of the War; it has been discovered during the restoration of the castle. The bunker has a constant temperature of 14° and it is used as a cellar for the prestigious Cru red wine of the Castle, as well as the famous 20 year-aged Grappa Riserva Conte Ludovico.

Guided visits

The medieval cellars can be visited on booking. Famous since the second half of the 13th Century, the Castle's wine had been described as of "excellent quality" in Casanova's Memorie. The guided visits begin with a 10-minute showing in which are presented the resorts and the wines, and continues through the old water cistern, which is nowadays an important wine stock, till the barriquerie with natural stones; finally, seventy stairs lead to the second level of the cellar, from where you can get outside the castle, in the centuries-old park castle. Here you will enjoy the serenity of the location by strolling around the path dedicated to Giacomo Casanova which is made up with pergolas, balconies decorated with statues, centuries-old trees: 10 stop-overs marked by wrought iron signs where Casanova's aphorisms on love, women, friendship and life are engraved.

The winery Castello di Spessa in Capriva del Friuli (Go) is located in one of the most precious winemaking Italian territories, which is the hills of the Collio Goriziano, sloping to the fertile valley of the Isonzo river: here the climate is mild, with an important temperature excursion thanks to the near Adriatic Sea and it is ideal for viticulture and for preserving the scents of the grapes. The land of Collio is made up with layers of marl and sandstone, which give the wines (in particular to white wines, the most well-known of the territory at an international level) unique features. In the Isonzo territory, the land is characterized by the presence of clay, sand and gravel which give structure and colour to red wines, particularly intense and delicate, and elegant and harmonious scents to white wines.

Guided tastings

On booking, it is possible to have a guided taste itinerary discovering the well-known wines of the Castello di Spessa – Doc Collio and Doc Isonzo – and the grappas distilled with the marcs of our grapes. The favourable territory of the Collio and the Isonzo river lends in a natural way a typical scent to our wines, which will delight our customers.
